

Echidna Fact Sheet

- An Echidna tongue can reach 18 cm long and it can flick it out to catch ants a 100 times a minute!
- They look like anteaters and other spiny mammals such as hedgehogs and porcupines.
- Like the platypus, they are equipped with electrosensors (That's the ability to perceive natural electrical stimuli-helps them locate food).
- Echidnas and the platypus are the only egg-laying mammals, known as monotremes.
